

Fox Valley Plastic Surgery, S.C.

Fox Valley Plastic Surgery, located about an hour north of Milwaukee at the Renaissance Center in Oshkosh, Wisconsin, has provided personalized care for over 25,000 people since 1993. Some of our patients have been through a major change in their life, such as a significant injury or illness, but most are making a decision to change their sense of self by going through a personal Renaissance.

The profound difference of the Renaissance Center can be summarized in one word: privacy.

Patients can enter and leave the Renaissance Center anonymously. For privacy and protection, the center features an enclosed garage and tinted windows throughout the building where you can see out but no one can see in.

Patients also receive private weight checks and receive care in patient bays with closed glass doors (in addition to traditional curtains). These details are important to the patient experience and ensure privacy for all conversations inside and outside the patient's room.

Recovery is comfortable too. Patients have the ability to control their own beds instead of having to call the nurse to adjust the bed elevation. Even when the Center is cool in temperature, patients remain comfortable in warm gowns and blankets.

Fox Valley Plastic Surgery also utilizes pain management control devices to minimize your discomfort. All this, along with the expert and attentive care from nursing staff, will help you get back on your feet and ready to go home soon after surgery.

In the last 14 years, Fox Valley Plastic Surgery has taken care of more than 25,000 patients. Some of the patients have been through a major change in their life, whether it is from a significant injury, or a decision to change their sense of self-confidence by going through a personal Renaissance. The patients consider the cosmetic surgery experience as a new beginning, and Fox Valley Plastic Surgery has a team of people who help improve our patients self esteem as well as help them define honest expectations for results.

At the Renaissance Center, patients will work with a friendly staff and enjoy better results at Fox Valley Plastic Surgery and the Renaissance MediSpa.
